Katakana jumble Adapted from www.eslprintables.com The class is divided into pairs or groups. The teacher writes some words in katakana about a topic being studied on the board and gives each group a set of small cards where children write each katakana of the words on the board. Then they have to mix the katakana and then recompose each word. Board FlashEach Ss has a mini whiteboard (or a laminated piece of paper), whiteboard marker and eraser (or a chux). Tt yells out a katakana. The Ss write it on the whiteboard and then show the Tt as quickly as possible. Points can be allocated to the fastest Ss. Or the fastest Ss can then yell out the next letter.
